Shrine

We enter the Shrine at an unspecified point in time and space where museums and galleries do not exist. Images, objects, prints or sculptures are not “valuables” nor important and the institutions that used to protect them in the past are now gone. Financial and environmental crises, conflicts and wars have turned into an existential crisis. Building interiors tend to change with time as they follow trends in architecture and adjust themselves to the needs of the society. What does the term shrine represent in this reality? What is it for? Who and what does it worship?

Nitra Gallery and the artist invite you to the exhibition Shrine.
